Absurd Person Singular by Alan Ayckbourn

It's a dark and stormy night – perfect for a festive holiday party! This hilarious comedy romp follows three married couples through three disastrous Christmas parties, as they drink, frolic, and fight their way to... holiday cheer? Ayckbourn's trademark verbal volleys and fast-paced, over-the-top situations will have audiences celebrating.

Mauritius by Theresa Rebeck

Mom has died, leaving half-sisters Mary and Jackie with a rare stamp collection. Mary wants to keep it for its sentimental value. Jackie wants to sell it for the fortune it might be worth. Enter three foul-talking shady stamp dealers determined to get the sale, and an elaborate con game over the dubious inheritance unfolds. At once a gripping family drama and a delightfully sinister comedy, veteran playwright Rebeck's 2007 Broadway hit twists and turns and takes you for a ride until its final shocking scene.
